

KOUNTOUPES DENHAM CARR & REID

Firm Profile

A premier bipartisan, women-owned federal government relations firm.

Kountoupes Denham Carr & Reid (KDCR Partners) is a premier bipartisan and women-owned federal government relations firm celebrating nearly 20 years of impact. Intentionally bipartisan and bicameral from day one, the firm guides Fortune 500 companies, trade associations, nonprofits, and fast-growing startups through the complex federal legislative, regulatory, and political landscapes in Washington, DC. Known for a deeply collaborative and personal approach, KDCR serves as a true strategic partner rather than just a vendor. KDCR's outreach philosophy is centered on sustaining your reputation and fostering long-term relationships over time with members of Congress and policymakers in the executive branch to ensure your priorities are met regardless of the political constellation in Washington.

When you partner with KDCR, you are supported by a powerhouse team of Republican and Democratic principals who boast decades of elite Washington experience, ranging from former White House deputy assistants, congressional chiefs of staff, senior committee and leadership aides, and agency leaders, and are consistently recognized as top lobbyists in the industry. Unlike firms that hand clients off to junior associates, KDCR clients always work directly with the firm's principals. These dynamic and articulate professionals have breadth of experience, depth of existing relationships, and the know-how to engage and build new relationships to effectively represent your organization and accomplish your policy goals in Washington.
